

HOW TO PUNCTUATE DIALOGUE

In Mr. Bockholt's class, Ty fabricated a mischievous plot. Leaning over, he whispered to Jack, "Hey, we should get outta here. You know, sluff class."

"If we do," he responded with a skeptical smile, "he'll know, and we would get into so much trouble. He might even invoke the MLA gods to prescribe our eternal punishment."

"You're right, I guess. We should stay here and be good students—listening to everything the sub tells us," reluctantly Ty admitted as he readied himself the day's activities.

LEAD IN:

In Mr. Bockholt's class, Ty fabricated a mischievous plot. Leaning over, he whispered to Jack, "Hey, we should get outta here. You know, sluff class."

MIDDLE LEAD:

“If we do,” he responded with a skeptical smile, “he’ll know, and we would get into so much trouble. He might even invoke the MLA gods to prescribe our eternal punishment.”

END LEAD:

“You’re right, I guess. We should stay here and be good students—listening to everything Mr. Bockholt tells us,” reluctantly Ty admitted as he readied himself the day’s activities.